

One-million-man-hours without LTI at Thai Tank Terminal

Since the last LTI occurred on November 10, 2000, TTT is proud to announce that on April 26, 2005 it has completed 1,000,000 man-hours without an LTI. The total duration is 4 years and 167 days and all 113 employees are most excited to achieve this landmark.

This accomplishment came from company policy, management's support and the dedication of all employees. Everyone has had opportunities to participate in safety activities and we have seen very good collaboration. We have conducted many safety programs e.g. weekly-safety talk, monthly-safety audit, safety-observation round, yearly-safety training, SHEQ day and etc. We have reformed our safety culture and image from safety cop to be safety adviser and gradually have reinforced our employees' safety-behavior.

Safety objective is not just a target number to be hit but it is to protect our employees from danger in working circumstances and to return them home safely after work. Furthermore, Safety is one of the corporate core values of our business and it makes customers confident and satisfied when giving us custody of their products. This shall strengthen our business as well as employees' gratification.

On June 17, 2005, we held an achievement celebration, a night party and gave certificates to every employee, made them proud and recognized. Our next target is 1,250,000 man-hrs (about 1 year from now) and we intend to achieve the target. We shall endeavor as much as we can, to reach the highest destination and we like to have this announcement again next year and thereafter.

1,000,000 Man-Hours achievement without Loss Time Injury